Almond Hopes To Avoid Tax Increase

ROANOKE, Va. (P)—Atty. Gen. J. Lindsay Almond Jr. says if elected governor he will oppose any increase in taxes "that is inconsistent with the public good and the prosperity of our state."

In a talk before the Roanoke Democratic Women's Club yesterday, Almond did not directly oppose a sales tax, but said he hoped the needs of the state can be met with present taxes because of economic activity in the state. Almond is opposed for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in the July 9 primary by Howard H. Carwile, Richmond attorney.

HE SAID he would debate all the issues of the campaign with any candidate the Republicans put up to oppose him.

He told reporters before the luncheon talk he expected State Sen. Ted Dalton of Radford would be the Republican nominee. Dalton so far has maintained he believes someone else should carry the GOP standard this time, but has not definitely counted himself out.

Another speaker before the women's club was Howard C. Gilmer Jr., Pulaski attorney and Democratic nominee for attorney general.

HE SAID he definitely would be a candidate in the July 9 Democratic primary even though he is under fire from insurance agents
